

GREGG WILLIAMS

The Best Round TEG Has Seen

A -12 return on the field's first visit to Camiral's Tour Course now stands as the finest round in 80 outings of TEG history.

Gregg Williams's first round at PGA Catalunya - Tour produced a net score of -12. It is the best round recorded in TEG history so far. The mark was set on the very first weekend of competition, which slightly undercuts the grandeur, but a record is a record. His gross tally of +20 was a personal best in its own right.

The round was no procession. Williams shed seven shots over holes 3 to 5: a triple bogey at the 3rd, a double at the 4th, and another double at the par-5 5th. The bleeding continued towards the turn. A birdie at the 11th finally stopped it, part of a stretch across holes 9-11 in which he gained five shots to net par. A second birdie, at the 14th, opened something better still. Seven shots gained over holes 13-16, with back-to-back pars either side of the birdie. Then a double bogey at the 17th, arriving like a bailiff at a party. By then the damage to his card was done, in the best possible sense.

DAVID MULLIN | JON BAKER

One Shot Separates Mullin and Baker

A round of career-best gross golf from Jon Baker still leaves him chasing David Mullin's single-shot Green Jacket lead after day one.

David Mullin assembled the steadiest round of the day at PGA Catalunya's Tour course. He drew level for the Trophy (Net VP) lead at the 3rd. A bogey at the par-5 5th dropped him back to level again. By that same hole he had taken outright control of the Green Jacket (Gross) lead. Two separate two-hole stretches passed without a dropped gross shot, at the 6th-7th and again at the 10th-11th. Nothing thrilling happened in either. That was rather the point.

By the close Mullin led the Jacket outright, while Gregg Williams headed the Trophy with no gap at all on net scoring, leaving that race level after round one. The louder story belonged elsewhere, with Jon Baker carding a personal-best gross round of +18 amid the wreckage. But Mullin's round was the one that mattered to the shape of the days ahead. The Jacket race is tight. The Trophy race has suddenly gone very loose indeed.

WOODEN SPOON | HENRY MELLER

Meller's Twin Nines Seal Last Place

Two quadruple-bogey 9s condemn Henry Meller to the bottom of the Wooden Spoon table on the very first day of a course nobody had seen before.

Round one at PGA Catalunya's Tour Course found the bottom of the Wooden Spoon race a crowded place. Henry Meller was the worst affected. He ran up quadruple-bogey 9s twice in the same round, first at the par-5 7th, then again at the par-5 15th. One such hole is misfortune. Two suggests a settled philosophy. A double bogey at the 11th offered no relief, and he finished rooted at the foot of the Spoon table.

He was not alone. Jon Baker slipped to the bottom of the same race three times over the round, undone by a triple bogey at the 4th and two further double bogeys. Stuart Neumann managed a triple at the 3rd and then a quintuple-bogey 9 at the 9th. The 9th ranks only mid-difficulty on the card. Neumann treated it as a personal matter. Between them the trio painted a round in which the course punished nearly everyone chasing the wrong end of the leaderboard, not just one unlucky victim.
